

National Learning Network Launches New Prospectus

Pictured above: The new National Learning Network prospectus which provides information on all of the organisation's courses nationwide.

National Learning Network has recently launched its new prospectus detailing the 73 vocational and rehabilitation courses available at its centres in some 25 counties nationwide.

THE TRAINING AND education division of the Rehab Group, National Learning Network is Ireland's leading provider of inclusive training, inclusive education and employment access services. In 2006, over 80 per cent of National Learning Network learners who completed their courses progressed to jobs or to further education and training.

From Lifford in County Donegal to Bantry in West Cork, National Learning Network centres provide people with disabilities and others who are marginalised with skills they need to build lasting careers in jobs that reflect their interests and abilities.

The 108-page prospectus includes a colour-coded grid that allows prospective learners to find, at a glance, the course they are interested in, whether it is a FÁSfunded skills development course in areas such as IT, business, arts, catering or employer-based training, or a personal development and career development course funded by the Health Service Executive. There's something for everyone!

The prospectus also provides details on the individual courses found in each centre, including a list of modules, course duration and the certification received on completion.

In addition, there's information on National Learning Network's assessment service, mental health services, training and education supports, services to employers and much more.

The prospectus can be downloaded from the National Learning Network website at www.nln.ie or copies can be obtained from your local National Learning Network centre. ■

Who to contact

For further information please contact:

Dawn Duffin

Manager, Learning and Assessment Services
National Learning Network

00353 1 200 0155
dawn.duffin@rehab.ie